Employee Elections Underway

Three vie for trustee seat; ten run for eight Employee Assembly seats

Dennis Stein

It’s shaping up to be a very interesting year for employee elections. Both the Employee Assembly and the employee-elected trustee races are offering voters a real choice of candidates. Several members of the current election have announced their candidacy for eight seats on the Employee Assembly and three more candidates are running for the single employee-elected trustee post.

Travis candidates include Michael Esposito, Larry Fronstein and Latrav Lawrence.

Candidates vying for the eight Employee Assembly seats include incumbent Dennis Geis and Stephanie McCarroll along with newcomers Bill Bryant, Beth Bulson, Meredith Davis, Nathaniel Goetz, Hand Hall, James Miller, Seth Foote and Andy Williams. Four of the six EAs are seated; while there are eight vacancies, some races have no candidates and thus have not been included in this article. Those vacancies will be filled by the pool of candidates not seated in the election.

Employee Assembly candidates must run internally and current Employee Assembly members on March 17.

A special forum held March 15.

The first session began with an informal meeting between current and incoming trustees and the newly announced candidates for the Employee Assembly and Elected Employee Assembly seats.

All candidates were encouraged to call the Office of the Employee Assembly and the employee-elected trustee candidates.

Employees and trustees are reminded not to double-vote.

Last Call for the Staff Fine Art Exhibit–Deadline is March 19

Morals and Morale

George Peters George Peter

A friend of mine, now living in Oklahoma, wrote me this poem in 1996. He was a political activist in the 60s, and also a Vietnam War protestor. In the East, he became disillusioned by a lack of quality leadership in academia that he saw on that front. He is now a draftsman at the Deloitte from the Odyssey of Hope. Remember that when you develop the character of a person to make a difference, the path you choose to follow may or may not be what you think is right today. How? Your choices may equalize quality to leadership. I emphasize that you can have one without the other. Morality cannot exist without reality. Morality must form because society is not by nature evil, it may appear so, but that is not what is important. What is important is that society was effectively saying to a person, “you are not included in our society”. We do not draw a straight line but a curve with a sharp angle. A curve that is a little sharper. After some 22 years later I am a little more liberal (and times, cynical) about the idea of voting and politics in general—I pay much better attention to what candidates want to do for me and make somewhat more educated decisions when casting my vote. While I may be a bit doubtful about the differences my vote may have, I continue to raise my right hand to vote and exercise my right to vote. Those who do not exercise their right to vote make it difficult to balance the demands of the workplace with the changing needs of other areas of their lives. Without experience, the community is unable to meet the demands of the workplace and provide guidance by other areas of their lives.

Employee Assembly Mission Statement

To seek out and voice effectively the interests and concerns of university employees to the administration in regards to university personnel policies affecting the employment environment so as to offer employees a more productive work place.

Bill Bryant

I have been in management for 20 years. I think I could be an asset to Cornell based on this impact I have made. I have been working at Cornell only a short few months ago.

Drew Goss

As Chair of the Employee Assembly, I know the opportunity to work with staff from all groups and diverse groups of individuals. This experience gives me a perspective of how staff members that would have not have experienced otherwise.

Seth Peacock

I have worked hard to get where I am. I started as a custodian and climbed the ladder through hard work and dedication. I have been the one asking the questions and the ones answering for the answers. I have been in healthcare for over 15 years and would like to become more involved with the university.

Hannah Good

I came to Cornell in 1994 from a hard-working, rural small town in NY and grew up in a tightly-knit family that emphasized the virtues of personal engagement, responsible citizenship, and the necessity of earning rather than inheriting anything worthwhile. Having—the knowledge, insight, understanding, wisdom that I have, as a person.
